

west

LOS ANGELES TIMES : JULY 9, 2006

THE FOREVER YOUNG ISSUE

The science and sociology of cheating the clock

61+

Number of TV guest appearances made by the Beverly Hills surgeon Robert M. Rey, star of E! network's aesthetic surgery reality series "Dr. 90210."

$110

Price for 1 ounce of Crème de la Mer, the moisturizer said to be invented decades ago in the garage of an aerospace physicist as a salve for his chemical burns.

The most common procedures for those 18 and under last year were laser hair removal, microdermabrasion and rhinoplasty. This age group accounted for 1.5 % of all cosmetic work. People ages 35 to 50 made up 47% of the total, and those between 51 and 64, 24%.

$890 Million

$925 Million

Expected range of Botox sales in 2006.

$71 BILLION

The amount spent last year in the U.S. on total of 1.5 million cosmetic procedures, both surgical and nonsurgical.

awful plastic surgery where people who's had